

Absolutely not! As a flight attendant, I can only foresee passengers complaining. For some it would be wonderful (businessmen, etc), but for others who want to sleep, read, quiet, relax, listen to music, have sleeping children, don't feel well, want to have a conversation, it would be a disaster! The noise level alone would go up so you wouldn't be able to hear anything. There is plenty of time for phone calls before a flight, after all, what did we do before cell phones? It's hard enough dealing getting people to turn off their computers!!